COUNTY KIDS HELP WITH EXTREME BUILD

It is an extreme build, county style. Thursday evening, the results of a labour of love for kids at the Discovery Childcare Program (based out of St. John de Brebeuf Catholic Elementary School) in Kingsville will be revealed in a “move-that-bus” moment. Eighty-six children working under the supervision and direction of Walter Branco and the contractors at Noah Homes have constructed a child-sized home complete with siding, windows and a porch light. Several other contractors were involved in the build and local businesses donated materials. Tickets for the pint-sized home, estimated to be worth more than $2,500 are being sold with proceeds going to Habitat for Humanity to aid in building a real home for a family. The event marks the culmination of a summer full of random acts of kindness designed to help the children realize they are part of a larger family called COMMUNITY.
